Certificate in Project Management

OVERVIEW

Project management is a critical function of any organisation. Delays not only cause frustration, they cost valuable time and money. Therefore, a good project manager is critical to the running of any company, from the smallest start-ups to the largest corporations. The Certificate in Project Management is designed to teach you the skills needed to successfully manage projects – from the planning stages through to execution and managing the people involved. Whether you want to start your career in project management or improve your skills in your existing role, this course will help you achieve it.
